

GarigEano; a charter was drawn up which, overlooking the investiture of Anacletua, renewed and extended the grant of Honoriu« H. Naples and Benevento were scarcely touched upon; but the bulwark of Capita was surrendered.

That day, the 25th of July, Roger and Ma two sons appeared before the POJH*, knelt before him, received absolution, and swore the oath of homage to the Holy See, The King himself was then invested by gonfanon with the kingdom, hia eldest son with Apulia, his second, Alfonso, with Capua. The investiture complete, the new illie» set out towards Benevento, an, two years before under far other circumstances, Lothar and the same Pope had done. At the end of June, Roger camped without the walls while Innocent entered the city; Benevento was all joy because it protect of last- ing peace had come for the tttonn*Kwept ctnmtry. The same evening the King himself entami, and an eye-witness relates with detail Inn pious visits to the great churches of the city, his devout pro- stration before the altar of St.. Mcreuriua in the abbey of St. Sophia, and his dutiful request of the monks to include him in their prayers, after which he left the city,* The harmony of Pope and .King was undisturbed by Innocent's rejection of all terms with Roger's faithful Archbishop Rossemannus, and hi« restoration of Gregory to the see of the city.
